Big Voter Turnout Expected Here Tomorrow

SPUTNIK II IS ANALYZED BY U. S.

Judgeship Races to Feature

An estimated 75 per cent of the registered voters in Monessen and the rest of Westmoreland County is expected to go to the polls in tomorrow's general election.

In Monessen, the spotlight is centered on the mayoralty race between Democratic incumbent Mayor Hugo J. Parente, who is seeking an unprecedented fourth term, and his Republican opponent, John R. Stieska.

Countywise, the main feature is the battle for the three common pleas judgeship positions.

The battle between Parente and Stieska will be the second this year. Parente defeated Stieska, a registered Democrat, by over 1,400 votes for the Democratic nomination in the May primary. However, he lost to Stieska for the GOP nomination in a sticker and write-in campaign. No Republican filed for any office in Monessen for the primary.

Political sources believe Parente will win hands down tomorrow mainly because of the heavy Democratic majority in the City.

Polling Hours Are 7 a. m. to 8 p. m.

The polling places for tomorrow's general election will be open from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m. est. Voting machines will be in use in the 15 Monessen precints. White paper ballots will be used in most other Westmoreland County communities.

Belle Vernon, Washington Twp. and Fayette City, all in Fayette County, will use voting machines.

The Democrats have some 9,400 registered voters on their rolls compared to about 1,100 for the Republicans.

Parente is looking for the straight ticket to carry him through while Stieska believes an "upset" may be in the offing.

There will be practically no contest for other City offices. Winning both nominations in May were Councilman John Molnar, Treasurer John Spielman and Controller James Tucci. The other Democratic nominee for Council is John Harhai, who ran as an independent Democratic candidate and beat out the organization's candidate, Councilman David Victoria.

William Snyder, a registered Democrat, lost out for the Democratic nomination but won the Republican nomination on a write-in vote. Snyder is campaigning mainly because he believes he has a "moral obligation to the voters who supported me."

Emil Beck and Dr. Joseph M. Dudas Sr. are Democratic candidates for school director. Beck also won the Republican nomination and has Clifford Learnard, a registered Democrat, as his GOP running mate.

The judicial race looms as the hottest in years as the Republicans seek to break the long rule of the Democratic party in the courthouse.

The Democratic candidates are incumbents Edward G. Bauer and David H. Weiss, who is serving by

Two Minor Traffic Accidents in City

Two minor traffic accidents happened in Monessen over the weekend, it was reported today.

One occurred Saturday afternoon in a parking lot off Grand Blvd. and involved cars operated by Barket Elias, 170 Schoonmaker Ave., and Michael Ninchak, 514 First St., both of Monessen.

Early yesterday afternoon cars driven by Frank Jackowski, 1514 Rostraver St., Monessen, and Gerry Muscetta, 309 Allen Ave., Donora, collided at the intersection of First St. and McKee Ave.

Former Local Man, Now State Trooper, Captures Convicts

A former Monessen man, now a state trooper stationed at Butler, captured two escaped convicts after a 90-mile-an-hour chase on Saturday.

Trooper Michael Donahoe, whose parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Donahoe live at 693 McKee Way, Monessen, arrested the men after a wild chase on Route 38 near Butler.

Michael Donahoe

Police identified the escaped men as Chester S. Brockman, 36, of Butler and Thomas J. Manny, 29, of Butler R.D. 3.

The pair broke loose from Butler County's new "escape proof" jail on August 13, and headed west. A few days ago, state police received a "tip" that the two men had been seen in the area.

Several state police cars were assigned to patrol the district in search of the men. Donahoe recognized Manny in a car travelling on Route 88 about 1:15 p.m. Saturday. He immediately gave chase.

Stopped After Firing

The fleeing convicts raced their car to 90 miles-an-hour. But when Donahoe fired several shots in their direction they stopped after a two mile run.

Brockman and Manny surrendered to Donahoe, who later found a loaded revolver under the front seat of the car.

According to police at the Butler barracks, the men have confessed to five burglaries in the Butler area in the past few days. They also admitted they were driving a car stolen in Indiana, police said. Pennsylvania license plates on the car had also been stolen.

Police added that the two men had headed west following their escape from the Butler County Jail. They reached the state of Washington before returning to Butler. Police said the two men left a trail of crimes behind them.

Five Counts Filed

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has asked that the men be held until they check on the western trip.

Five counts of burglary have already been filed against the pair, as well as prison breach and violation of the uniform firearms act.

Donahue has been a member of the state police since 1947. He is married and the father of a daughter.

A few years back, he recapturd another escaped convict in Mercer.

A graduate of Monessen High School in 1941, Donahue served with the U.S. Army in the South Pacific. He was employed as a construction worker and at the Monessen Page Division plant of the American Chain and Cable Co., Inc., prior to joining the state police.

Doctor Warns Against Punitive Action in Squabble

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Dr. James T. McLaughlin, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Pittsburgh, has cautioned against the taking of action against physicians who deal with the United Mine Workers Health and Welfare fund.

In an article in the Allegheny County Medical Society Bulletin, Dr. McLaughlin said that the interest of the patient should come first. He warned against ultimatums "flung out of anger" and said doctors who deal with the fund "are doing what they feel is right."

Organized medical groups have been feuding with the UMW fund, accusing it of "dictatorial" policies. Proposals have been made for punitive action against doctors who do business with the welfare fund.

Campaign Notes—

GOP to Have Watchers At Several Polls Here

Republican watchers will be on duty at several Monessen voting precincts tomorrow for the first time in years, according to GOP mayoralty candidate John R. Stieska.

Stieska said particular attention will be paid to downtown precincts known to be controlled by the Democratic organization and in which fraud has occurred in past elections.

The watchers will be equipped with lists of voters who have moved or otherwise are not eligible to vote tomorrow although their names may still be on the registration books, Stieska said.

"We are going to be especially watchful to prevent illegal assistance to voters in the polling places," he said. "The county election board has reported that much of this has been going on in Monessen, and we are going to stop it."

The law provides that no voter can be assisted unless an entry appears on his registration card indicating that assistance is required.

Stieska said efforts also will be made to "enforce the law in front of polling places."

He said in the past large numbers of people have been allowed to congregate illegally both inside some of the polling places and on the sidewalks outside. They interfere with the access of voters and make it difficult for watchers to keep track of the voting as it proceeds.

"We are going to do everything we can to insure an orderly and honest election," Stieska said. "That is something we have not had in Monessen in the past, and it is something every community is entitled to."

Topper in Challenge

Attorney Willis E. Topper, one of the three Republican nominees for the Westmoreland County common pleas bench, today challenged a recent statement by Democratic District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco that "a person in political life should be promoted."

"Recently the district attorney, who is now a candidate for judge, stated that big corporations have

Dog Inside; To Use Ape Next Time

MOSCOW (UP) — The official Communist organ Pravda said today Russian scientists were planning to use anthropoid apes as the next passengers for space vehicles as a result of their successful launching of Sputnik II.

Observers in Moscow already had reported a Soviet space platform and rockets to the moon the next most likely steps of Soviet science now that the second earth satellite is orbiting around the earth with a live dog aboard as the first space traveler.

And Soviet scientists already were indicating they might try to bring back to earth safely the Eskimo Husky dog that was shot into space early Sunday in Russia's second earth satellite in a month.

Today Pravda gave indications of bigger things to come when it said scientists were planning to send apes into space since the animals and their reactions would be much closer to man in preparation for future manned flights to the moon.

In recent months Soviet scientists indicated they hoped for manned flight to the moon by 1960. Preliminary investigations with living animals would be necessary before man himself can penetrate space for the first time.

Sputnik A Tribute

The newest Sputnik was in scientific tribute to the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. There was widespread belief the Russians would cap all previous scientific exploits Thursday, the actual anniversary date, with some greater achievement.

Here are the salient facts and figures on the new satellite and a comparison with the first: weight 1,120.29 pounds or six times that of the old; altitude 1,056 miles or 497 miles higher than the old; speed 17,840 miles an hour, about the same as the old, with one revolution around the earth requiring 103.7 minutes.

The new satellite, believed to be cone shaped and the last stage of the rocket, carries half a ton of scientific and measuring equipment. Radio equipment in addition to sending back information on the dog also studies cosmic rays and solar radiation within the short-wave, ultraviolet and x-ray fields of the spectrum.

The Sputnik II which Russia announced Sunday was transmitting "bleep bleeps" similar to those heard from the first satellite. Added to the bleeps was an electronic hissing said to be the sounds of the

Rocket to Moon Could be on Way, Astronomer Says

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—A top astronomer said today "it is entirely possible" the Russians already have launched a rocket to the moon.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory, said it would take a rocket about five days to reach the moon. He said the Russians may have launched the moon rocket Saturday.

Whipple told a news conference: "It is entirely possible the Russians already have a rocket on the way to the moon.

"If they have, it would have been launched Saturday. It would take the rocket five days to get there."

Whipple said it "would be impossible to see the rocket on the way to the moon unless we know exactly where it was launched."

He said if a telescope were pointed in the right direction at the right time, the rocket might leave a trail on the scope.

Whipple, head of Harvard University's astronomy department, said firing a missile to the moon would require a "different type of rocketry."

But he added he believed the Russians were capable of doing it.

Hoffa Perjury Trial Resumes Wednesday

NEW YORK (UP) — The trial of James R. Hoffa on perjury charges was postponed today until Wednesday pending a decision on a motion to dismiss the indictment.

Hoffa, president - elect of the powerful International Brotherhood of Teamsters, appeared briefly in federal court this morning for the scheduled opening of his trial on charges of lying to a federal rackets grand jury. Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan ruled that the trial would have to wait for the decision, scheduled to be announced Wednesday morning.

Judge William B. Herlands reserved decision Wednesday on motions by Hoffa's attorneys to dismiss the perjury indictment and to suppress evidence of wiretapping.

Sol Gelb, chief counsel for Hoffa, urged the perjury indictment be thrown out claiming Hoffa was not called to testify before the grand jury as a witness, but as a defendant. The prosecution answered that the government did not know Hoffa would be a defendant when it called him as a witness.

Hoffa, barred by court order from taking over the presidency of the Teamsters International, pleaded innocent before Herlands on Oct. 15 to the five-count perjury indictment which was handed down by the grand jury last Sept. 25.

The indictment charged Hoffa

Testimony has been taken in the case by Judge David Weiner at several previous hearings. The decision will be made by the court sitting en banc.

The township has opposed the Donora annexation attempt. Attorneys for Carroll have questioned the legality of the petition.

A decision is not expected by the court before the latter part of December or the first of next year.

Monessen Youth Shot; Authorities Are Investigating

A 16 year old Monessen youth was in "critical" condition at Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh today following a shooting incident yesterday afternoon near Twilight.

State Police said Thomas Steer Jr., 921 Summit Ave., was "accidentally" shot behind the right ear with a .22 caliber slug. They refused to add any further details, stating that the case had been turned over to juvenile authorities for a complete investigation.

According to reports, Steer and four companions from Monessen had gone to a spot near the Pittsburgh-West Virginia Railroad reservoir off of Twilight Hollow for some "target practice."

Since all of the youths involved were juveniles, police refused to identify any of them. One was a girl, it was learned.

Steer was shot behind the right ear with a .22 caliber bullet at about 3:30 p.m. He was rushed to Charleroi-Monessen Hospital for emergency treatment by the Charleroi Fire Department ambulance.

He was later moved to Mercy Hospital for additional surgery. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Steer.

Officials at both Twilight and Speers said today they have repeatedly warned against "target practice" in the area.

New Fears Are Voiced over the Red Advances

WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House said today that this government is studying Russia's rocket advances "very carefully."

The statement came as congressional and scientific leaders voiced new fears that Russia, already first into space with a satellite and a living animal, may be piling up an unbeatable lead in war missiles.

Two congressional inquiries into the administration's handling of the crucial rocket-missile race with Russia opened today.

The White House, which Sunday said Russia's half-ton Sputnik II came as "no surprise" to President Eisenhower, added this comment today:

"The executive branch is analyzing this very carefully, both as to what it means in terms of rocketry and, also, as to its scientific significance."

The President held a series of personal and telephone conferences Sunday with members of his staff and what the White House described as "several scientific and national security advisers."

As to a proposal by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) that the President call a special session of Congress on the missile-satellite issue, acting press secretary Anne Wheaton, said, "as far as I know there are no plans for a special session."

No New Speedup

Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy, who already has ordered restoration of funds cut from the missile and research programs, said there will be no new speedup.

"We are already under a pressure program," McElroy said.

The White House said the launching of the second Russian satellite "had been anticipated since the Russians had announced it in advance." It said Eisenhower planned no special conferences.

The State Department declined comment on the new Soviet moon. But officials privately conceded the Russians will score a new propaganda victory with it and that they will reap an extra dividend.

The dividend will be, they said, that Sputnik II will divert some world attention from Russia's internal troubles, particularly from the dissension in the Communist Party hierarchy evidenced by the ouster of Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov.

Dr. John Rinehart, associate director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory at Cambridge, Mass., commented that "no matter what we do now, the Russians will beat us to the moon." He said he "wouldn't be surprised" if the Soviets sent a rocket to the moon "within a week."

The reaction of Dr. John P. Hagen, head of the U.S. satellite program, to the new Sputnik was that the United States would "diligently puruse our own Vanguard satellite program" in the light of Russia's latest feat. But he gave no indication that the U.S. program would be speeded up.

Man Who Led Police in Wild Chase Is Held

A Pittsburgh man who police claim led them on a wild "cops-and-robbers" chase through the valley last Oct. 25 has been ordered held for the next term of Washington County criminal court.

Alvin Bostick, Pittsburgh, was held without bail after a hearing last Friday before Squire Raymond J. Curley in Charleroi. He is charged with burglary, loitering, prowling at night and a motor code violation.

Bostick was arrested in Donora the morning after a police chase from Charleroi to a point near Monongahela. According to police, Bostick and a companion were spotted near a Charleroi supermarket, apparently attempting to gain entrance.

The men fled in their car, which was later wrecked near Cemetery Hill near Monongahela. Police gave chase through a nearby wooded area, but the pair escaped.

The next morning Bostick was arrested by Donora police, who found him wandering with injuries. He was taken to Charleroi-Monessen Hospital, then removed to Washington County Jail.

Squire Curley said Bostick has entered a not guilty plea to all charges.

Applicants for Chamber Job Are Interviewed

A committee of the Monessen Chamber of Commerce will continue to interview applicants for the position of executive-manager, it was announced today by Charles Hagerstrand, Chamber president.

He said the resigned executive manager, George Cieply, has offered to spend a half-day the next two weeks at the Chamber office. If no successor has been named by then, Chamber officials plan to take turns at the office, according to Hagerstrand.

Ceiply started his new duties on Friday in the industrial relations department of the Pittsburgh Steel Co. ... ...

Hagerstrand said the Chamber is considering several applicants. All will be interviewed before a decision is made, Hagerstrand added.

Library Bond Issue Approval Expected

Monessen voters are expected tomorrow to approve a $200,000 city bond issue to finance construction of a new public library building.

No opposition to the bond issue has been voiced publicly. Dozens of civic, fraternal, labor and political organizations have endorsed it.

Donald C. Duvall, chairman of the Committee for the Library, a non-partisan group formed to explain the project to the voters: ... today he feels confident of a favorable vote.

But he emphasized that it is still necessary for the voters actually to register their "Yes" votes on the voting machines.

"We have done our best to acquaint the people with the library project, and we feel there is a good public understanding of it" Duvall said, "But now we need the 'Yes' votes to make the library a reality."

City Council has agreed, if the bond issue passes, to erect the new building on Donner Ave. according to plans developed by the Civic Library Association, which now operates the community's public library.

In turn, directors of the Library Association have agreed to recommend to its members transfer of all the group's assets to the city. These include the present building on Fifth St. and the Donner Ave. site.

The new library would be operated as a function of the city government under a board of trustees appointed by the City Council.

The bond issue appears as the

Jordan, Israel Treaty Reports Blasted by Egypt

By UNITED PRESS

Relations between Egypt and its former ally Jordan suddenly worsened today. The Egyptian Radio called King Hussein a "traitor" and warned him, "you will pay dearly."

The blast against Hussein followed reports in the Egyptian press that Jordan and Israel were negotiating a peace treaty, a report the Israeli Foreign Ministry called "complete nonsense."

Ahmed Said, chief news commentator for Cairo radio's Voice of the Arabs program, said "there were heroes in Jordan who stopped King Abdullah from signing a peace treaty with Israel in 1950. There are still heroes in Jordan today who can stop his grandson king from signing such a treaty."

King Abdullah was assassinated in 1950.

Calls Meeting Secret

The Egyptian commentator said Hussein and Jordanian Premier Samir El Rifai met secretly with Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion and Foreign Minister Golda Meir in the Jordanian town of Nablus in mid-September and reached a three point agreement:

—On liquidation of the Arab refugee problem.

—Establishment of relations between Israel and Jordan.

—Opening of the borders between the two countries.

The commentator said Hussein would receive 30 million dollars from the United States as a "reward for treachery against the Arab people of Jordan."

The original charges against Hussein appeared Sunday in the newspaper Al Shaab which said Israeli-Jordan negotiations were underway in Washington.

Both the press and radio joined in the attack today — the most bitter yet against Jordan since the two nations severed diplomatic relations last summer over Jordan's charges of a Syro-Egyptian plot to assassinate Hussein.

Egypt Bitter Over Break

There was no immediate indication of the purpose behind the attacks on Jordan. However Egypt has been bitter because Hussein broke off from the Syro-Egyptian axis last summer and formed a strong alliance with Saudi Arabia and Iraq.

Other Mideast developments:

Cairo — The semi-official Middle East New Agency reported that a bomb exploded in the Jewish school in Beirut, damaging the building. No casualties were mentioned.

Cairo —The Arab League Political Committee rejected Dag Hammarskjold's proposal that Arab countries help pay for maintaining the U.N. Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip.

Cairo — Egyptian spokesman said Egypt would break off the Rome talks with Britain today if Britain does not agree to the unconditional release of Egypt's more than 500 million dollars in frozen pound sterling assets.

Humphrey Back To Washington In Steel Probe

WASHINGTON (UP) — George M. Humphrey, Eisenhower administration spokesman on money matters for more than four years, returned to Washington today to talk about the same subject from a different point of view.

The former treasury secretary represented National Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh, Pa. before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee. Humphrey became chairman of National Steel's board of directors after leaving his cabinet post last summer.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) is investigating steel prices, particularly last July's $6 a ton increase. It already has heard from U. S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., the one-two companies in the steel industry.

In calling for testimony from National Steel, the subcommittee sought the attitude of a firm in the second rank of the industry. National is the country's fifth largest steel company.

One of the subjects likely to come up is Kefauver's appeal last Thursday to the steel industry to cut prices at least $3 a ton.

Kefauver said the $6 price increase in July had not been shown to be justified. A price cutback, he said, would help stimulate all segments of the economy.

Allegheny County Plans Inquiry At Hospital Site

PITSBURGH (UP)—Allegheny County Commissioners promised today a full-scale inquiry into a series of conflicting charges concerning construction of the $2,500,000 John J. Kane Hospital.

The commissioners said they would air every aspect of the situation from charges that some $250,000 in material has been stolen from the site to reports that contractors lost millions of dollars on the job.

The district attorney will be urged to prosecute, the commissioners said, if any of the charges were substantiated. The hospital, located in Scott Twp., is nearly completed.

"No public monies are involved (in the losses) because the job is still in the hands of the contractors and is their full responsibility," the commissioners said. "Whatever false impression has been conveyed, there has and will be no loss or additional cost to the taxpayers."

Khrushchev Heading Toward Dictatorship

LONDON (UP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev is headed toward the infamous peak of absolute dictatorship but his trail will be a rocky one, western experts on Soviet affairs said today.

They said the timing of the Soviet Communist Party chief's purge of Marshal Georgi Zhukov indicated Khrushchev himself was facing imminent danger of being overthrown.

Otherwise, they said, Khrushchev would not have timed it to throw a damper on recent Soviet scientific achievements and the forthcoming celebration Thursday of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The experts said there still must be a potent group in the Red army strongly loyal to Zhukov and violently opposed to Khrushchev despite the fact that top-ranking military officers promptly joined in denunciation of their former commander publicly.

Khrushchev's purges may leave him standing on a pedestal, but a shaky one, the experts said.

The Zhukov disgrace definitely stunned the Soviet people and particularly the men in the armed forces who had served under him.

Hundreds of party agitators were in the field over the weekend—as far away as East Germany—trying to soften the shock.

The Communist East German news agency ADN said even Khrushchev and Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, who replaced Zhukov as defense minister, spoke at party meetings. This underlined the gravity of the situation as Khrushchev viewed it.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, summed up the charges against Zhukov in a lengthy article and editorial Sunday.

Labeled False Hero

In short, it said he had made himself a false hero and subordinated party policies to armed forces policies.

In a companion article, Gen. Ivan S. Konev, chief of the Warsaw Pact armies and an old colleague of Zhukov, belittled and ridiculed Zhukov's military achievements.

Zhukov apparently was able to retain his rank of marshal and his Communist Party and Supreme Soviet membership although he was booted out of the Central Committee.

He apparently will be given a minor post in some military district or school.

a promotion system, and, therefore a person in political life should be promoted," said Topper. "It is true that a deserving person should be advanced in any field. However a promotion should be based upon ability and success in the position held by the person to be promoted.

"In public life a promotion should be based upon ability and service to the people. Has the district attorney shown the necessary ability and served the people well enough to warrant an advancement to the bench?

"According to Attorney Joseph M. Loughran, who was a candidate at the primary election and who served in the district attorney's office for seven years previously as assistant, Mr. Sculco's job is to prosecute criminal cases, but Sculco has not tried a single case during his entire two terms of office as District Attorney. He has not proved his ability nor his right to promotion as judge.

"In the interest of the best government and fair play, I feel that both major political parties are entitled to representation in the courts of Westmoreland County. At present all the judges of our county are members of the Democrat party."

Final Rally Tonight

The pre-election of the Monessen Democratic party will come to a close tonight with a rally at Slovak Home at 8 p. m.

Attending the rally will be candidates for both City and Westmoreland County offices.

Over the weekend, the Democrats visited at least 15 different clubs in an appeal for the straight Democratic ticket.

No Republican rallies are scheduled, it was learned.

By UNITED PRESS

Traffic accidents in Pennsylvania claimed at least 18 lives during the weekend, a United Press survey showed today.

Six of the victims were pedestrians who were run down by automobiles, three of them in Philadelphia. Two men were killed at Lebanon when their car hit a parked machine and then skidded for 100 feet on its roof.

Lebanon: Arthur G. Carpenter, 54, Anthracite, and William H. Snyder, 52, Rexmont, were killed here Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding struck a parked car on Cornwall Rd. The men were thrown from the machine when it overturned and skidded for 100 feet on its roof.

The GOP opponents are Avra N. Pershing Jr., Robert H. Rial and Willis Topper.

The Democrats are leaning on their 51,000 vote registration majority to keep them intact while the GOP is counting on regular Republicans, and Democrats who are "dissatisfied" with their party.

Other county races find Earl S. Keim, Democrat, opposing Wayne Donahue for district attorney; Howard W. Bricker, Democrat, and his brother-in-law, Robert Kunkle, opponents for clerk of courts; incumbent Prothonotary Leo Sukala, Democrat, being opposed by William Cox, and Coroner Stephen D. Yoney, Democrat, facing Joseph Hunter.

Dora M. Dunn, Democrat, and Margaret Henderson, Republican, are assured their jury commissioner posts.

In Fayette County, voters will select a common pleas judge, an orphans' court judge and a jury commissioner.

Judge W. Russell Car has been assured a spot on the common pleas bench, having won both nominations.

In the race for judge of orphans court, Democrat James A. Reilly will oppose Republican Ross S. Matthews. Democrat James P. Gleason and Republican James J. Robinson are jury commissioner candidates.

An Open Letter
To The Voters of Monessen
To: John R. Stieska
Monessen, Pa.

We, the undersigned Democrats, take issue with your political tactics in attaching our names to an advertisement urging a straight Republican vote.

Your unusual amount of political ego finds you, as usual, bouncing from one political party to another. Because you are now a Republican candidate for Mayor certainly gives you no right to associate our names with your own in your aimless quest to take over City Hall.

Attaching someone else's name with yours on a political ad without even seeking permission to do so serves to reveal why you have failed to gain confidence of either political party. It is no wonder then that even the Republicans regard your candidacy as somewhat of a joke and who, themselves, cannot accept you seriously. It has become quite clear by now that you are fooling no one but yourself.

In fact, you have yet to reveal a platform that you are running on. When a candidate for public office tries to build a campaign on criticism and innuendo and has no program to offer, he provides a source of amusement which is neither desirable nor acceptable by the intelligent voting public, especially when the high office of Mayor of the City of Monessen is at stake.

We strongly resent having our names associated with yours and denounce the lowly type of political trickery you have stooped to.

Voters to Decide On Bonus

By UNITED PRESS

Pennsylvania voters will provide a partial answer to the 150 million dollar Korean bonus question in the isolation of their voting booths Tuesday.

The electorate will be asked specifically whether the state Constitution should be changed to permit the state to create an additional bonded indebtedness of 150 million dollars to pay Pennsylvania veterans of the Korean War a bonus similar to the one granted World War II veterans.

A "yes" answer would be a big step toward eventual payment of the bonus. But the 1959 Legislature would still have to enact a tax program to finance payments to between 325,000 and 400,000 veterans who served during the Korean War.

The proposed amendment on the ballot contains a restrictive provision that the debt may not be incurred until the General Assembly enacts revenue-raising measures sufficient to amortize the amount borrowed, either in new taxes or boosts in existing levies.

Another proposed constitutional change on the statewide ballot would authorize absentee voting for certain civilians, aimed at giving qualified electors the right to cast mailed ballots if unavoidably absent from the state or county of their residence, or are unable to go to polling places because of illness or physical disability.

Here again, the next Legislature would have to draw up the machinery by which the right would be exercised, with specific changes in the state Elections Code.

Payment Procedure Set

The 1957 Legislature set up in advance the provisions for payment of the Korean bonus. Servicemen who hold the "Korean Service Medal" would be paid $15 for each month of overseas service between June 27, 1950 and July 27, 1953. All other veterans would receive compensation at the rate of $10 per month regardless of where they served during the period.

Veterans of World War I and the Spanish-American War were given a bonus averaging $139 each by the state in 1934. A 50 million dollar bond issue to finance it was retired in 1955.

World War II veterans received an average $368 which the state financed with 440 million dollars in bonds, a little more than a third of which have been retired.

Veterans organizations throughout the state have conducted their own campaigns in the last several months in an attempt to overcome normal voter apathy in off-year elections. They plan to man the state's 8,806 polling places Tuesday to drum up support for the bonus question.

Leaders of the two major parties, including Gov. George M. Leader and the respective party chairmen, have endorsed both proposals on the statewide ballot.

The governor pointed out that Pennsylvania paid a bonus to its veterans of both world wars and termed "continuance of this tradition . . . a commitment in principle."

Animal Lovers Protest Dog In Soviet Artificial Moon

NEW YORK (UP) — Animal lovers angrily called the Russian "fiends" today for putting a dog in their artificial moon.

The Russians replied that they, too, love dogs, but prefer people.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman in London, replying to protests by Britain's canine defense league, said "many human volunteers" offered to go up in Sputnik II, "but the authorities were unable to accept the sacrifice."

The statement did nothing to calm the indignant reaction of dog lovers. Their ire circled the earth as fast as Sputnik II and its nicknames — Muttnik, Poochnik and Pupnik. Many indicated they thought it would have been more humane to send a human being than an "innocent dog."

In New York, the general manager of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said the ASPCA would urge the State Department today to lodge an official protest with the Russian embassy at Washington.

Minute Of Silence

London's animal protective groups scheduled a minute of silence "with special thoughts for her (the dog's) early return to earth."

A British delegation which carried its protest to the Soviet embassy in London was received by First Secretary Yuri Modin. Two lady boxer dogs which accompanied the delegates were not invited in, however.

League Secretary R. Harvey said Modin told the group: "This is for the ultimate benefit of humanity. The Russians also love dogs, and this little dog was specially trained for the job. Every care was taken for its comfort."

The horrified reaction of Britain's dog-lovers was said to have almost overshadowed public reaction to Russia's scientific achievement of hurling a living creature into space.

One of the first to react in the United States was Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin Enzinger, member of the pre-World War I dance team of Vernon and Irene Castle, but most recently an avid antivivisectionist and ardent champion of dumb animals.

Mrs. Enzinger said it was all right for men to be sent into space because "they can decide for themselves" whether they want to make such a trip.

Calls It Wrong

"After all, they (dogs) have no chance to speak up as to whether they want to be used in these experiments," Mrs. Enzinger said in Little Rock, Ark. "It's morally, spiritually and ethically wrong."

"The Russians say the dog is still alive. Isn't that horrible? He's probably whining, lonely and petrified with fear of the dark."

A society for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Singapore was so upset it sent a direct protest to Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev at the Kremlin.

Although dog-lovers agreed the Russians were "brutal" and "inhuman" for sending the dog whirling around the world 1,056 miles high, they also agreed the Russians would pay little attention to their protests.

'Space Craft' Is Seen in Texas

LEVELLAND, Tex. (UP)—A man who has spent 20 years studying aerial phenomena said today he believes a mysterious object seen in west Texas and New Mexico "was a space craft from one of the neighboring planets."

The expert is James A. Lee of Abilene, Tex., a member of the National Investigations Committee on aerial phenomena and a director of Inter-Planetary Space Patrol, a west Texas organization which investigates "flying saucers" and similar objects.

Lee rushed here Sunday upon hearing of the latest object, seen by at least nine persons in two states.

The egg-shaped object, described as about 200 feet long and a brilliant red, was glimpsed by at least five persons in the Levelland area, including the sheriff, three persons at Midland and another at Clovis, N.M.

Says It Was on Road

James D. Long of Waco said he was driving on a farm-to-market road west of Levelland at 1:15 a.m. Sunday when he encountered the object sitting in the road.

He said it was oval-shaped, about 200 feet long and glowed like a neon sign. He got out of his car about 200 feet away to investigate but when he did the object suddenly took off with a roar straight up into the air.

Long said his engine coughed and died and his headlights suddenly went out. When he got his car started, he hurried back to town.

Two other persons said they saw the object in the Levelland area about an hour earlier. Both Pedro Sacido and Nowell E. Wright said the object passed over their cars with a roar like thunder. The engines of their cars died and the headlights went out, too.

Sheriff Weir Clem and his deputy, Pat McCullough, spotted the object streaking across the sky in front of their car.

The ground observer corps at Midland reported that an unidentified mother and her two children saw "a large object of bluish color flying west and very low" early Saturday night.

Odis Echols, owner of radio station KCLV in Clovis, N.M., said he "saw a streak of light like a fire ball" moving in a southeasterly direction about 8 p.m. Saturday.

"I think it's a space craft from one of the neighboring planets," he declared.

He said he will make a report of his investigation to Washington.

Killed in Auto Crash in Texas

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Nine persons were killed Sunday night in a head-on automobile collision on crowded U.S. 290 about 30 miles northwest of Houston.

State Highway Patrolman C. E. Morris said seven of the victims were killed instantly. Two others were dead upon arrival at a Hempstead hospital. There were no survivors.

Eight were in one car and six of them were relatives.

In Winterhaven, Calif., four more persons were killed and a fifth injured critically when their car was struck broadside by a speeding Continental Trailways bus on U. S. 80.

The dead were all from the Quecham Indian tribe of the Yuma, Ariz., Indian Reservation.

No one on the bus was seriously hurt.

End the Competition

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, a few days after Sputnik's launching, went to considerable length to discount the military importance of the satellite, and to reassure this country as to the state of our military preparedness.

Since that time we have been treated to a dizzying array of rocket and missile launchings, proof indeed that we had quite a number of these devices at the testing stage. Trotting out so many of them at this particular time is no doubt a result of the prodding provided by the Soviet Sputnik and it is no doubt part of the administration's program of reassurance.

It is having another side effect on many of us, however. It is serving to confirm the fact that a great deal of our substance has been wasted on inter-service rivalry.

It takes an expert of far wider knowledge than our own or of that possessed by most of our people to say whether or not we are lagging in the missile race. But if we are lagging, certainly one of the prime reasons is the obvious jealousy and bickering among the three armed services competing in this field. The U. S. Defense Department evidently has failed to force them to work together amicably.

There is small doubt that the Army, the Navy and the Air Force have all tried to take the center of the spotlight and to obtain the lion's share of the vast funds involved in missile research, testing and development. The result, evident even to the citizen observer, has been a waste of money, materials, manpower, and — what may be the most precious commodity of all — time.

While competition in a free economy with a profit motive is a tested success in America, it is not a desirable part of the defense effort which does not operate as a free economy and is not run for profit. It would appear wise that where the salvation of the country is at stake we will do better to get all our brains in the same laboratory and quit worrying about the color of the uniform. If the Soviet satellite helps to bring that about, our cold war enemies will have done us a big favor.

Convenience Vital

MONESSEN merchants know from experience how difficult it is to maintain business volume when either of the main downtown streets is closed for any reason. The present situation involving the temporary closing of Schoonmaker avenue at the up-river entrance to the city is demonstrating once again the importance of normal traffic movement.

The experience should serve to emphasize that a street closing is a last resort, to be considered only when the repairs are of such emergency nature or the improvements of such scale as to be carried out in no other way.

It should serve to emphasize too that the community must plan to keep these thoroughfares everything they should be to accomodate a volume of traffic which is certain to grow. Where it becomes necessary, individual convenience and private interests must yield to insure that the community has adequate access to its main business area.

As one observes the rate of new construction in Monessen and the increasing urbanization of the surrounding area, he must be impressed with the vast increase in business volume which is building up here. These new homes and their inhabitants will require a never-ending stream of commodities from drapes to power mowers to roofing to diapers.

New habits of buying and higher standards are constantly coming into evidence. Catering to this business will mean wide selection, good service and attractive, convenient facilities. The community which does not constantly try to provide these improvements will not keep its place in the competitive picture.

Inverse Ratio

A BRITISH historian, C. Northcote Parkinson, has published a book of essays entitled "Parkinson's Law". It is a gently humorous and ironic work, dealing largely with human foibles. It tells certain truths in an unusual but effective way.

According to Parkinson's Law, bureaucracy grows in mathematical proportion to the reduction of the duties it performs. If that sounds complex, it means simply the less work there is to do, the more people it takes to do it.

That, you may say, is absurd, but proof is not hard to come by. The Wall Street Journal cites the example of the International Cooperation Administration, the bureau which dispenses foreign aid. Its spending has been cut almost 50 per cent since 1953, during which time the number of its employes has almost doubled.

The ICA, of course, is not the only offender Washington abounds in bureaus whose usefulness has largely come to an end but which keep right on doing business at the same old stand with the same or a larger number of happy, tax-supported employes. The same thing is true of state capitals. And here is one important reason why government will continue to cost more, and needlessly so.

Merry-Go-Round—

Zhukov Visit Could Have Altered Future

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — State Department officials who know the inside of how their chief, John Foster Dulles, persuaded President Eisenhower not to invite Marshal Zhukov to Washington last summer, figure that history inside the Kremlin might be entirely different today if Dulles's persuasion had not prevailed.

Mr. Pearson

A trip by Zhukov to Washington would have so enhanced his prestige with the Russian people that he could not have been demoted.

What happened was that last summer the President definitely wanted to invite his old wartime buddy to Washington for a talk on improvement of Russian-American relations. This was reported by this column on Aug. 25, 1956 and later confirmed by the President in a press conference.

But Dulles talked the President out of the meeting.

At that time both Chancellor Adenauer of Germany and the British were worried about any moves which looked like too much friendship between the USA and USSR, and any side-deals on disarmament. Harold Stassen in London has been talking disarmament with the Russians privately, and the British and Germans protested to Dulles So the Secretary of State, fearing the President would get too chummy with Marshal Zhukov if he came to Washington, persuaded the President not to issue the invitation.

CIA Caught Napping

Allen Dulles, younger brother of the Secretary of State and head of Central Intelligence, has been more right than wrong in ferreting out backstage events in Europe. But he was caught completely off base in the showdown between Marshal Zhukov and party chief Nikita Khrushchev.

About two days before Zhukov was relieved, Allen had sent a report to the White House expressing the view that Zhukov was coming up fast and might head a new military dictatorship in six months. He had grabbed the secret police, Allen Dulles said, and seemed sure to take over Khrushchev's job.

Last month, furthermore, the CIA chief, speaking in San Francisco, made an unusual public statement that Russia was disrupted by political cross-currents and that Khrushchev seemed headed for trouble.

On one basic point, of course, Allen Dulles was right. Zhukov was grabbing for power. But what Dulles underestimated was Khrushchev's ability to cope with this He also overestimated the political power of the Red Army.

Secret Meeting on Cruiser

As far as can be pieced together, here are the inside facts which caused Khrushchev to move in on the man who had helped him save his job when he faced rebellion from Molotov, Malenkov et al last spring.

Shortly before Marshal Zhukov left for Yugoslavia he held a secret meeting aboard the Russian cruiser Kuibyshev at Sevastopol, the great Soviet submarine base in the Black Sea. Present were the top military commanders of the Red Army.

Zhukov is reported to have told them that he was opposed to any military adventures in the Near East which would risk bringing Russia into conflict with the United States. He was not against political moves in the Near East, but he was against any risk of war.

He further told Soviet commanders that Russia should concentrate on consolidating its position at home, not strike out in the Near East.

Zhukov also wanted to tighten Russian control over the satellites. As a military man, he viewed Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Bulgaria as buffer states which would absorb the first brunt of attack in case of war. He did not agree with Khrushchev's more lenient policy toward Poland and the satellites, and it will be recalled that it was Zhukov who cracked down on Hungary last year with the full force of the Red Army.

It is already known that Zhukov had bucked the Soviet Commissars attached to the Red Army for the purpose of keeping the military from dominating the Communist party. He wanted to decrease their power

All this apparently was too much for Khrushchev, and when the secret meeting at Sevastopol came to his attention, the head of the Communist party moved, while Zhukov was in Belgrade, to plan to promote him upstairs to an innocuous but face-saving post Zhukov refused. Hence the showdown inside the Kremlin

Note — Marshal Zhukov is given credit for getting Tito to extend Yugoslav recognition to East Germany. Since Tito was looked upon as the leader of independence among the satellites, his recognition of East Germany was a real retreat for him and a victory for Zhukov's policy of a tight ring of satellite nations around Russia.

Why Mark Missile Time?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Shouldn't something be done to step up the time-table to do whatever is needed to close the gap of Russia's ominous lead in scientific weapons?

Mr. Drummond

There are many urgent matters which President Eisenhower will be asking Congress in January to approve but, when the President puts in his requests in January it will be March before they begin to come out.

Why wait?

Is this a time for waiting?

I do not believe Congress wants to mark time or that we can afford to mark time while the Soviets are showing such ability to make time.

The Congressional leaders of both parties have been talking about the merit of getting going at once on some urgent defense investigation

Why not? There could well be some immediate committee hearings to determine what investigations would be useful.

But why stop there?

Why isn't it equally desirable that the Congressional leaders get going at once on some urgent defense legislation?

Why mark time until January?

To avert this time-wasting there could be immediate hearings on the essential defense parts of the President's program so that when Congress convenes on Jan. 7 it can have before it the considered recommendations of its responsible committees

Same Two Months

Let us not forget that anything the President puts before Congress in January, will not emerge until March; it took 62 days to enact the Eisenhower Mid-East Doctrine. If Congress will permit the President to put a "Program of Survival" before it in November, Congress can begin to act on it in January.

Two months should not be thrown away. It is not a short time. It is a very long time in the present tempo of the world.

Should we try to save these two months? I believe it would be worthwhile to save even two days — or two minutes.

Take one concrete action which Mr. Eisenhower will ask of Congress the first week of January — the amendment of the McMahon Atomic Energy Law in order to permit the United States to join with the other 14 NATO countries in pooling scientific information in the interest of stepping up everything we are doing in the nuclear field.

If it is desirable to pool our scientific skills some months in the future, it is desirable to do it now.

There are other urgent close-the-gap defense requests on which the President and Congress will need to act together. If more money is needed for research and missile development, Congress won't want to delay. If the debt ceiling is hampering the spending of appropriated funds, it will need to be raised. If there is no way to increase trained scientists without Federal assistance, the government will need to act.

No Special Session

I am not suggesting a special session of Congress. It is quite possible that a special sessions is not the best way to speed action at this time.

What I am suggesting is:

That all of the appropriate committees of Congress get ready to hold public hearings on the President's emergency defense proposals not later than the end of November.

That Mr. Eisenhower consider meeting with the legislative leaders of Congress of both parties at least a month earlier than planned, certainly by mid-November.

That, after this meeting with the legislative leaders, the President submit the proposals of highest priority needing early action, including amendment of the McMahon Act, to the Congressional committees immediately so that hearings can begin at once and Congress itself can be ready to act in January.

Why mark time if it isn't necessary?

The Kremlin isn't marking time.

Only the formalities of official notification appeared today to be between Pittsburgh Steel Co. and its acquisition of a new $7,000,000 blast furnace which would increase the basic iron producing capacity of the Monessen plant by more than a third. The Cleveland regional office of the War Assets Administration announced today it had recommended sale of the furnace to Pittsburgh Steel.

Virginia, New Jersey Elections Important

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Virginia and New Jersey citizens vote on Tuesday in elections more meaningful to their fellow citizens everywhere than such off-year contests normally could be.

Both states will elect governors. The Virginia polling will be the first substantial test of Southern sentiment since President Eisenhower ordered federal troops into Little Rock.

Democratic Gov. Robert B Meyner seeks re-election in New Jersey. That election could be the curtain raiser for 1960 in the Democratic Party. Re-election of Meyner by normally Republican New Jersey would put the governor up front in the race for his party's 1960 presidential nomination.

Moreover, Meyner's re-election would jolt the Eisenhower administration where it would hurt The administration has gone all out to help Republican Malcolm S Forbes' campaign against Meyner. Vice President Richard M. Nixon and half a dozen other Republican big shots have campaigned the state and the President, himself, gave an enthusiastic plug for Forbes at last week's news conference.

Needs Morale Boost

President and vice president alike told New Jersey Republicans that the national party needed the morale boost which Forbes' election would provide A Forbes win would somewhat offset last summer's Wisconsin damaging reverse in which Democrat William Proxmire defeated Republican William J Kohler for the late Joseph R McCarthy's Senate seat. Kohler had offered himself as a 100-percent Ike-man which added to the administration's hurt.

Eisenhower also had a plug for Republican Theodore Roosevelt Dalton who opposes Democrat J Lindsay Almond Jr., for governor in Virginia. Dalton probably would have been just as happy if the President had ignored him.

The big campaign issue in Virginia is integration of the public schools. Almond says fiercely that integration shall not take place in Virginia. Dalton proposes what appears to be a token compliance with the Supreme Court's order, as little integration as is possible

A Third Party?

Almond is the candidate of the regular Democratic organization in Virginia which is dominated by Sen. Harry F. Byrd. Byrd more than any other was responsible for Virginia casting its electoral votes for Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 There was in Virginia more than in any other state of the old South the beginnings of a two-party system.

More significant than Virginia's electoral votes for Eisenhower was the 1953 gubernatorial election in which Dalton polled 45 per cent of the vote cast. He lost to the Byrd organization's Thomas B. Stanley

The Senator's prestige in riding on Tuesday's polling and it is likely to ride high, wide and handsome. He is talking about licking Dalton by a margin of two-to-one. If so, many years probably will have to pass before Virginia resumes its trend toward the two-party system

Virginia will be politically isolated with the rest of the Old South in 1960 Both presidential candidates will have to endorse integration with enthusiasm and without qualification A third party could come of that

The Woman's View—

Today's Woman Uses Handcrafts for Hobby

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Today's woman sticks to her knitting. Also to her weaving, crocheting, rug-hooking, tatting, quilting and a hundred other hobbies which fill her spare time.

At the rate she is going, she will outdo grandma, and grandma was no slouch. She reared a big family did all the housework and still found time to knit socks and crochet antimacassars

"Look at what has happened to weaving," said Mrs. Leo Feinberg, who is coordinating the 34th Annual Women's International Exposition, which opened today at the 71st Regiment Armory. "It is an ancient craft, in a fantastic new vogue Women are weaving skirts, suit and dress fabrics, baby crib covers pictures, draperies, couch covers. One woman even has woven a room divider

"All this on a hand loom, mind you This year we are giving four times as much space to weaving entries as we did last year."

Half The Gals Crochet

The other handicrafts are doing right well. Mrs. Feinberg, who has been with the exposition since 1940 said at least 50 per cent of the nation's adult female population does crochet. Almost as many knit Some women are skilled at three or four types of needlework.

She isn't sure where they find the time, considering that some 22 million hold outside jobs.

Satisfies Creative Urge

"But there are three good reasons handicrafts will go on and on," she said. "They satisfy our creative urge Take me I'm a knitter. I can go out and buy a sweater for my grandson for $5 It will take me several hours to knit one and I will spend just as much money But I get more pleasure out of seeing him wear what I made.

"Doing something with our hands calms our nerves better than tranquilizing pills

"And, I do think most of us women deep down want to keep alive the arts and skills our grandmothers knew."

For most women, their handiwork is a hobby, although a few have turned it into a money-maker, she added

No Age Limit

Women from 8 to 80 are included in the more than 5,000 showing their work at the current exposition, which runs until Nov. 10

Youngest exhibitor is 8-year-old Gabriela De Ganges of Encino, Calif., who with her brother, Raoul, 9, is showing various gift items made of shells One of the oldest is Miss Mary O'Brien, 80, of the Bronx, an embroidery expert

A star attraction of the show is the "Rug-O-Rama" consisting of 450 hand-made rugs including a "one world" design by a travel-minded Long Island N Y, housewife. Mrs Ingrid McBrian featured a 9-by-15 foot hooked rug "which has been years in the making. I couldn't count the hours."

Battered 'Hounds Prep for Dukes

ON THE BALL

By CLAIR BROWN

Top Officials for Movie Club Classic

Top-notch cage officials have been signed by the local Movie Club for their "Holiday Basketball Tourney" in December . . . President Bob Manderino lists the following: Nick Jacobs, Cliff Fair, Dick Philips, Bud Roman and Boots Salotti . . . Efforts were also made to secure the services of Red Mihalic but the redhead is working the Dixie Classic around the same time and won't be available . . . In case you've forgotten, the entries are Altoona, Turtle Creek and Clairton and the Greyhounds . . . Clairton is tabbed as the team to watch in the district this season while Turtle Creek is said to have its finest team in years and Altoona shows promise of another strong entry . . . The Movie Club is preparing a fancy borchure for the tourney.

Jimmy Finks, the former Steelers quarterback, who coached the Notre Dame backfield last season, is now general manager of the Calgary Stampedes of the Canadian Football League . . . Many of Jimmy's critics blame him for the poor showing of Fighting Irish backs last year, an opinion which hurt him much more than any pro linemen ever did and it was an unfair remark for the Irish backs actually played well but had little or no protection . . . Speaking of coaches, Pitt's Johnny Michelosen was said to be walking to act on his contract last week but the Board had a change of heart (or something) and gave John a new three year pact.

MJHS Can Claim Valley Grid Title

Coach Al Romasco and Joe Gladys of the Monessen Junior High grid team can claim the Mon Valley title this season despite the abbreviated schedule for the unbeaten record of the Little 'Hounds is the best and only clean record in the area . . . There is no championship in junior high circles but unbeaten teams are awarded trophies . . . Since the locals would be more than willing to play their postponements with Donora and Monongahela, their abbreviated schedule will undoubtedly be considered a complete card.

* * *

Interest in football seems to be waning despite the fact there are some top notch games remaining . . . Most grid observers blame the decline in interest on the many postponements due to the flu and schedule difficulties . . . The Midgets have noticed it here as did the Junior High last week and Thursday night at Bellmar a small crowd turned out for "Parent's Night," which annually draws one of the largest crowds of the season . . . It's a shame because most of the best football is yet to come in some instances like the Midget All-Star game here, Mon Valley Conference (Big Five) tilts, a Monessen High-Duquesne tilt, and Bellmar's battle with tough North Union, which if as good as the South Union game will be terrific.

Cipriani Sharing Starting QB Job

Wayne Cipriani, former 'Hound quarterback, is sharing the starting quarterback duties at Lafayette with Merle Bainbridge of Pittstone, after winning a bout with the flu . . . One of the latest basketball magazines tabs John Mesher as an outstanding sophomore basketball prospect at Pitt . . . Mesher played his high school ball at Donora some years back and has been a star perfomer in the Monessen City League for the past several seasons . . . He won the most valuable player award in the Monongahela Invitational City League tourney two seasons ago . . . He has fair height, is a good shot but his main forte is wonderful coordination.

Today's Sports Parade—

Rome Set to Receive 1960 Olympic Games

By OSCAR FRALEY

ROME (UP)— This was a few hours out of Rome as the big "Super Seven" soared over a jagged Greek mountain and the clipper captain pointed downward to where the sun bathed a towering peak in various shades of gold.

"That," he said, "is Mount Olympus. From there they bring the symbolic flame which starts the Olympic Games."

A few hours later you crossed the yellow waters of the Tiber River and stood, amazed at all the marble, in the stadium-spotted river valley where in 1960 Rome will play host to the Olympic Games.

Two things can be said of this approaching international muscle festival. Rome is going to be ready for the games and these will be the most undressed Olympics of all times.

Many Statues

This is, by heredity, a city which doles on fountains and statues. Statues get the edge because while all the fountains have statues, not all the statues have fountains. And at the Olympic venue, the Romans have really knocked themselves out.

As an example, the marble-tiered stadium which will be used as a training track is surrounded by 60 statues. These aren't the kind you could put on a Roman mantlepiece, either, for each is 14 feet high — and everyone au naturale.

There is one of an ancient gladiator. He wears the cestus on his balled fist. That's all. Another represents an archer. Even the Mohawks wore more on the warpath. And you just simply couldn't believe how little clothes the Romans can put on, or off, a hockey player when they go to work with chisel and hammer.

Thus it goes, right through the full cycle of sports, and the live athletes in their skivvies are going to feel highly overdressed.

Yet, while there are mammoth marble musclemen staring stonily down from every unoccupied corner and cornice, don't get the idea that there isn't plenty of competitive space for the competitors with corpuscles. There is a main stadium which seats 100,000 people and, when you consider that they jam it in the rain for a soccer match, you can appreciate that Olympic ducats are going to be difficult to come by.

As is customary, however, the games are going to be as scattered as the friendly feeling among the various nations. In this bestatued area, track and field as well as the football finals, will be held in the main stadium. They also are building a huge outdoor swimming pool because the plushy indoor pool doesn't have sufficient seating area, and the weight-lifting and gymnastics will be staged in a nearby building — surrounded by, you guessed it, marble statues.

But such events as cycling, boxing, wrestling and basketball will be held about 10 miles crosstown. Their site was designed by the late boss of this area, a fellow named Mussolini, for a World Exposition in 1942 with none of the buildings smaller than Madison Square Garden. The fair never came off. Something about a war and Benito falling off his balcony.

Waynesburg Tops Findlay, 13-6, for Third Victory

Waynesburg College added another game to the win column Saturday night at Findlay, O., topping Findlay College 13 to 6.

The Oilers started off the scoring, when right half Ed Jordan capped a series of passes with a touchdown. John George, Yellow Jacket center, muffed the extra point attempt by blocking the kick.

In the second period, a Walker to Ed Galaski aerial attack scrambled the Findlay defense, putting the Jackets within touchdown range. Another pass from Walker to Ron Anderson climaxed the attempt, evening up the score. Waynesburg, however, failed to move ahead as Don Bartolomucci's kick was wide.

During the entire third quarter, the teams moved from one end of th field to the other, with neither breaking the tie.

Late in the final stanza, Walker's passes started to hit again, as Frosh Barry Getto sparked the Waynesburg offense, snagging the ball three times.

Getto missed a crucial catch, but interference was called on Findlay, putting the ball on the two yard line.

With less than two minutes to go in the game, Bartolomucci crossed the line, putting Waynesburg in the lead.

The win over Findlay gives Waynesburg a 3-1-1 record for the season and a perfect record with Findlay. They first played them last year, defeating them 12 to 6.

Next Saturday, the Jackets will invade West Virginia Tech, at Montgomery, W. Va. Coach John Popovich is hopeful of defeating the Engineers to avenge a 20 to 13 homecoming defeat in 1956.

Score by Periods:

Waynesburg	0	6	0	7—13
Findlay	6	0	0	0— 6

TOUCHDOWNS — Waynesburg Bartolomucci, Anderson; Findlay — Jordan.

EXTRA POINTS — Waynesburg; Bartolomucci. (placement).

'Hounds Cagers Begin Drilling in Earnest

Coach Frank Janosik of the Monessen High cagers will send his charges through the third day of practice as he anxiously awaits the reporting of cagers who are now members of the grid squad.

Basketball practice under the WPIAL rules was permitted to start last Friday when Janosik greeted 35 candidates but only two of last year's holdovers, Dick DiBiaso and Joe Kurey.

Janosik announced Friday that he would hold drills six times a week, on Monday through Saturday to prepare for the coming season, which is permitted to open on Friday, November 29 (but not before) by the WPIAL.

Top-Notch Coach

The veteran Monessen mentor considered by many valley cage observers to be one of the top coaches in the district will be going all out to regain the top spot in Mon Valley cage circles after relinquishing that honor to Charleroi last season.

Janosik received a tough blow when a promising 6-5 hoopster Al Thiry, whom Janosik began developing last season as a freshman, had to move to Charleroi High due to conditions beyond the cager's control.

The picture will brighten somewhat here when the gridders report for some promising talent is currently performing in grid togs like Dan Barton, Joe Karbowsky, Ken Bronson, etc.

Only Four AA Elevens Remain On Unbeaten List

By BURTON W. SIGLIN

Schoolboy football returned to normal last week although most schools now face the job of catching up on the schedules which were partially wrecked by the influenza epidemic.

The number of games postponed were negligible this week as the grid season entered its final few weeks. But many schools, which normally complete their seasons in the next two weeks, will be playing through Thanksgiving and beyond to complete their schedules.

Conference title contenders in most sections of the state managed to remain in the race for their league crowns.

But in WPIAL, the list of eligibles was cut to four by Baldwin's loss to Mt. Lebanon. Still in contention are New Kensington, which dropped McKeesport, 25-16; Clairton, 21-3 conqueror of Turtle Creek; Uniontown, which blanked Connellsville, 28-0, and Wilkinsburg, a 40-7 winner over Jeannette.

George Bobby High In Field Fence

George Bobby posted a 187 and a 479 to pace the Field Fence Bowling League over the weekend action as the Eagles and Rams chalked up victories.

Lou Sellero, John Billok, Ivo Picchiarini and Ridsy Calderone were also among the top pointmakers, who were shooting for the single game high mark of 214 by Bill Doyle and the three game record of Coco Vivanni.

Standings — Bears 13-11, Eagles 13-11, Rams 12-12 and Hawks 10-14.

Kogets Set New Marks In Ball-Chain League

The Kogets, Joe and Ruth, took top honors in the Ball and Chain League action at the Grand Parlor alleys in weekend competition.

Joe rolled a 235 for a new single game men's high mark and also showed a 559 three-game chart. Ruth took both single and three-game honors for the ladies with a 175 and a 475.

Ray Echart and Bob McKeever trailed Koget while Martha Drusash and Arlene Echart were behind Ruth.

The South and North topped the East and West in league matches.

Standings — West 13-8, North 13-8, South 10-11, and East 6-15.

Jays Keep ELL Lead; Ann Lombardo High

First place in the Eagles Ladies following a 3-0 shutout last night as the Orioles and Robins also chalked up wins.

Ann Lombardo paced all scorers with a 159-465 with Ruth Koget, Mary Baker, Elizabeth Rich, Betty Parente, Thea Dominico and Helen Wolford close behind the leader.

Standings — Jays 17-10, Chicks 15-12, Orioles 15-12, Robins 14-13, Keets 14-13, Canaries 12-15.

Rip Engle Claims Team Missed Jacks Despite 27-6 Win

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —Penn State Coach Rip Engle, whose Nittany Lions routed West Virginia 27-6 Saturday, caused some eye-brow lifting today when he said his team could have done better if first-string quarterback Al Jacks had not been sidelined by injuries.

Jacks' replacement, sophomore Richie Lucas, was the stand out player in Saturday's victory. He completed 8 of 14 passes for 101 yards and two touchdowns, and turned in 48 yards running, including a 19-yard effort in a surprise scamper from punt formation.

Engle admitted Lucas had turned in a fine game, but added:

"But we missed Jacks. We had a lot of men open on some of those incomplete passes."

Art Lewis, the disappointed coach of the Mountaineers, said Lucas run from punt formation and an end around play by Lews Walters were the turning points of the game.

Lucas' decision to run from punt formation on his own 40-yard line, Lewis said, seemed to befuddle his team. Walters' nine-yard run was a key play in the first of Penn State's two scoring drives in the third quarter.

Lucas stepped into the No. 1 quarterback slot after the regular signal caller, Jacks, suffered a shoulder injury in the Syracuse game.

Vulcans Drop 26-12 Decision

Bloomsburg Teachers, paced by quarterback John Oustrich's two touchdowns, won a 26-12 verdict over California Teachers at Bloomsburg Saturday.

The Vulcans, who have a 1-4 season mark, were trailing by only a 14-12 count going into the fourth quarter when the winners tacked on two insurance touchdowns.

Vulcans John Darrigo and Hammond scored on one-yard plunges with Don DiNardo's 26 yard run setting up Darrigo's six-pointer.

CSTC will entertain West Liberty in its final home game next week and will visit West Chester one week from Saturday for the final contest of the season.

Velmer Again Paces MVCC Weekend Golf

Sam Velmer showed a 37-40-77 card yesterday to pace weekend golfers at Monongahela Country Club. W. H. Sharp shot Saturday's low gross of 45-37-82.

Saturday "kicker" winners were: C. H. Williams, Jr., 94-10-84; R. Blyth; M. Rodgers, Rod Glick, C. R. McConnell, C. R. Waugh, K. N. Linger, Ed Luse.

Sunday's "kicker" scores were: William Goldstrohm, 88-14-74; Frank Novosielski, John Brazack, Jules Monack, Walter Kuta, Rod Glick.

Rose Grillo Tops In Local DW

Rose M. Grillo showed the best card as the Panthers and Leopards copped victories in the Monessen Democratic Women's Bowling League over the weekend.

Marie Foster, MaryJane D'Annibale and Mary Katsuleris also rolled top games.

The standings — Leopards 16-8, Tigers 12-12, Panthers 11 - 13 and Lions 9-15.

Niccolai Scanning Injury List After Charleroi Battle

Monessen High School's battered Greyhound gridders began prepping today for their next foe, a home attraction with the Duquesne High Dukes Friday night.

After Coach Armand Niccolai "counted noses" following the Charleroi game last week he found Lou Gigliotti, who had replaced the already injured Tom Churan (prior to the Charleroi game) at center; James (Bobo) Aldrich, who had returned to game action for the first time with the Windber opener; and Ken Bronson, first-string halfback, on the injured list.

All three were helped from the field following the Cougar clash which the locals dropped 21-12.

The exact extent of the injuries will be determined when Niccolai checks with the team physician, Dr. M. W. Heatter tday. All seemed to have suffered leg injuries.

Aldrich Back on List

Aldrich had suffered an injury in the opening game of the season and had been slowly nursed back to health finally reaching tip-top shape in time for the cougar clash and lasting until the fourth quarter when he was assisted from the field.

Gigliotti started out as the second string center but jumped to the first string when Tom Churan was injured in the Uniontown clash.

Bronson was clobbered in the third period and had to be aided from the field but returned to action in the fourth quarter and had apparently completely recovered. He took a Dan Barton pass, however, on the final play of the game and failed to get up after the tackle by two Charleroi defenders and again had to be taken from the game.

Niccolai was pleased by the fine showing made by 260-pound tackle Ed Allen and sub halfback Jimmy Lewitsky, who replaced Bronson and then stayed in when Bronson returned to action, chalking up a five-yards per try average. Allen was in on three-fourths of the tackles in the latter part of the game.

Hershey Widens AHL Margin

By UNITED PRESS

The Hershey Bears, who haven't lost a game in the American Hockey League since Oct. 12, added two more victories to their skein during the weekend to widen their first-place lead to 10 points.

The Bears defeated the Providence Reds, 5-2, Saturday night and added a 5-3 win over the Buffalo Bisons Sunday to keep their perfect record going through the last 10 games. The pair of wins gave them a 10-1-1 record and 21 points.

The second-place Rochester Americans, idle Saturday, battled to a 3-3 tie with the Springfield Indians to stay one point ahead of the Reds, who bounced back to defeat the Cleveland Barons, 6-3, in Sunday's other game.

Mon Valley Industrial Bowling Loop Opens

First round action in the newly formed Mon Valley Industrial CIO Bowling League last night showed Bill Werlewas at the top of the list with a 240-566 card.

Other top pin-topplers were Bakewell, Bill Stetsko, Schilling and Joe Ondrei.

Opening winners were Monessen 1229 and Allenport 1187 over Donora 1758 and Monessen 3403.

Palmer Cops SD Open Then Quits Golfing Trial

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP) — Plumb tuckered out from the arduous chores of following the golfing trail, San Diego Open champion Arnold Palmer quit the tournament circuit today and headed for his home in Latrobe, Pa.,—with $2,800 in his pocket.

The good-looking, 27-year-old college graduate said he would not compete in any more golf tournaments this year. One reason may be the income tax business.

In collecting first money here Sunday, he sky-rocketed his season's winnings to $27,627.80. He previously had won the Houston, Akron and Azalea (Wilmington, Del.) opens — and he has been close up in most of the other tournaments around the country.

He finished off a great week by shooting a 70 Sunday which gave him a 72-hole total of 271—17 shots under par, and mostly scored in adverse weather conditions.

Balding picked up $1,900 for second place; Souchak, Rosburg and Casper tied for third with 273, each collecting $1,233.33. Far back, at 276, Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass.; Doug Ford, Mahopac, N.Y., and Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., came next, each collecting $916.66.

Morrall's Arm Leads Steelers To 19-13 Upset Win Over Colts

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Steeler Quarterback Earl Morrall completed 18 of 30 passes Sunday for 270 yards to lead Pittsburgh to a 19-13 upset victory over the Baltimore Colts.

The classy Morrall's passing effort was the best one-game performance of the National Football League season and it kept the Steelers in a second-place tie in the Eastern Division with the New York Giants, a game behind the Cleveland Browns.

Morrall heaved touchdown tosses of 48 and 22 yards to end Ray Mathews and had the Colts in a tizzy most of the afternoon. End Jack McClairen was also on the receiving end of several of Morrall's passes.

But the play that probably made Coach Buddy Parker the happiest was Gary Glick's 16-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. The successful boot came after Glick had missed one from the 24 in the second quarter and Pittsburgh fans felt sure the defensive halfback was still in a kicking slump.

The Steelers also scored a safety when end Bill McPeak tackled Jerry Unitas in the end zone in the fourth period after the Colts were put in a hole on the kickoff as the ball kept bouncing around.

Jack Butler intercepted three Colt passes to bring his total in that department to eight for the season. Butler also blocked a conversion attempt after the Colts had scored in the first quarter.

Unbeaten, Untied Teams Now 34

NEW YORK (UP)— The number of unbeaten and untied college football teams dwindled to 34 during the past weekend.

Iowa and Dartmouth dropped from the perfect record ranks when Michigan held the Hawkeyes to a 21-21 tie and Yale battled Dartmouth to a 14-14 standoff.

Their departure left Oklahoma, Texas A&M, Auburn and Arizona (Tempe) State among the major college survivors.

Oklahoma, in squeezing out a 13-0 victory over Kansas State, ran its record winning streak to 46 games. Little Hillsdale (Mich.) rolled to a 48-0 triumph over Kalamazoo for its 32nd straight.

Eastern New Mexico and Pittsburg (Kan.) topped the perfect record list for this season with 8-0 records. Nine teams, including Hillsdale and Texas A&M, are all-victorious in seven games, while Oklahoma, Auburn and Arizona (Tempe) State headed those teams with 6-0 records.

Battered Panthers Open Drills For Mountaineer Tilt

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A badly-battered University of Pittsburgh football team, a 24-21 upset victim of Syracuse, opened practice here today for its annual tussle with West Virginia's Mountaineers.

The only bright spot for Coach Johnny Michelosen was a new three-year contract. In addition to the loss to Syracuse Saturday, Michelosen was faced with injuries to three key players.

Center Charley Brueckman partially dislocated his shoulder against the Orange and may be out of action for two weeks. Right halfback Joe Scisly has a badly bruised hip and a sprained ankle and guard Ed Michaels badly bruised ribs. The injured players were under treatment in Mercy Hospital.

Scisly was almost a sure to miss Saturday's Pitt Stadium encounter with the Mountaineers. Michaels, however, may see limited action since X-rays revealed no fractures.

The Panthers now have a 3-4 record, the worst showing they have made since Michelosen took over in 1955. The Mountaineers, after losing to a fired-up Penn State team, has a 4-2-1 record.

'Heavy' Hitting Reds

CINCINNATI (UP)— The Cincinnati Redlegs will feature three of the biggest first-basemen ever to be on one roster next year—244-pound Ted Kluszewski, 235-pound Steve Bilko and 215-pound George Crowe.

Randy Sandy 8-5 Over Armstrong; On TV Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Middleweight Randy Sandy of New York is favored at 8-5 to tag Gene (Ace) Armstrong of Elizabeth, N.J., with his first defeat tonight in their TV 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena.

It will be televised by Dumont at 10:30 p.m. (e.s.t.).

Armstrong, an unusually smart boxer but a comparatively light puncher, seeks his 12th straight professional victory as he faces his first "name" opponent.

Sandy, a former ranking contender, would be a lop-sided favorite were it not for the fact that he lost all three of his bouts this year — to formidable opponents. They were Joey Giardello, ranked fourth; Spider Webb, sixth, and Germany's Franz Szuzina, unranked. Each decision was close.

Meanwhile, Armstrong clicked off five straight victories in 1957. He scored his first knockout in his last bout, Oct. 14, when he stopped the favored Eddie Thompson in the seventh round for his first defeat.

From 1920 through 1928, Paavo Nurmi set 11 world distance running records, won six Olympic gold medals and was the toast of two continents on grand personal appearance tours.

Celtics Stay On Top Even With Cousy Sidelined

By UNITED PRESS . . .

They say as Bob Cousy goes, so goes the Boston Celtics. But even without their star guard, the defending champions of the National Basketball Association remained unbeaten during the past weekend.

The Celtics ran their early-season victory streak to five games by knocking off the Syracuse Nationals, 107-83, at Boston Saturday night and then whipped the Nationals, 113-95, Sunday night at New York.

Cousy, fighting a touch of the flu, set out Saturday night's contest and saw only about seven minutes of action Sunday night, scoring five points.

After a week lay-off, the New York Knickerbockers returned to action Sunday night and polished off the Philadelphia Warriors, 113-95, in the second game of a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden.

The Detroit Pistons moved into a first place tie with Cincinnati in the Western Division by whipping the Royals, 94-88.

Oklahoma Rated 1-2 Favorite to Complete Fourth Perfect Season

By UNITED PRESS

Oklahoma is rated a 1-2 favorite to complete a fourth straight unbeaten and untied season, but the odds are 2-1 against either Texas A&M or Auburn escaping the 1957 brand of "upset lightning."

The Sooners, Aggies and Plainsmen were left as the nation's only perfect record major teams Saturday when Notre Dame bowed to Navy, 20-6, and Iowa and Dartmouth were tied. It was no picnic for the "Big Three" either, Oklahoma beating Kansas State, 13-0, Texas A&M shading Arkansas, 7-6, and Auburn downing Florida, 13-0.

Despite the upsets, the bowl picture is coming rapidly into focus. It looks like Oregon vs. Ohio State in the Rose; Mississippi vs. Texas A&M or Texas in the Sugar; Texas A&M or Texas vs. Army or Navy in the Cotton, and Oklahoma vs. Duke in the Orange.

Face Rugged Foes

All three of the perfect-record teams take on rugged opposition next Saturday with Oklahoma opposing Missouri (3-0 in the Big Eight and 5-1-1 overall), Texas A&M facing Southern Methodist (1-1 in the Southwest Conference and 2-2-1 overall) and Auburn meeting Mississippi State (3-1 in the Southeastern Conference and 5-1 overall).

Notre Dame plays Michigan State and Navy meets Duke in non-conference national attractions but next Saturday's schedule features mostly those back-yard conference feuds which so often produce upsets.

Oklahoma Nears Title

Oklahoma will wrap up the Big Eight title if it beats Missouri and Oregon, with the Rose Bowl bid virtually clinched, plays Washington in the Pacific Conference.

In the Big 10, Ohio State faces Purdue while Iowa attempts to bounce back against Minnesota and Michigan hopes to keep going against Illinois; Texas A&M can still be challenged in the Southwest Conference by Texas, which meets winless Baylor Saturday; Mississippi, unbeaten along with Auburn in the Southeastern, is playing Louisiana State and Princeton (4-0) plays Harvard (2-2) while Dartmouth (3-0-1) meets Columbia (1-4) in the Ivy League.

St. Vincent Tied In Final Minute By Kings, 26-26

LATROBE, Pa. (UP)—St. Vincent completed its season here Sunday with a 5-1-1 record after being tied, 26-26, by Kings College of Wilkes-Barre in the final minute on a 75-yard touchdown run.

Kings fullback John Ferguson intercepted a pass and romped all the way to tie the game after St. Vincent was leading 26-20. Ferguson then missed the extra point which would have won the game for Kings.

St. Vincent monopolized the first half until late in the second period when Kings scored on a 58-yard pass play from quarterback Bernie Kobal to end Jake Sobeski to make the score 19-7.

A fumble by the Monarchs in the first period set up St. Vincent's first score when tackle Leonard Damalon snagged the ball and trambled 11 - yards. St. Vincent scored twice in the second period and again in the fourth period when halfback Mike Scatena went off tackle for 23 yards.

Quarterback Don McCloy heaved the fourth-down pass which Ferguson intercepted.

Keeps Toeing Mark

CLEVELAND (UP)—Lou (Golden Toe) Groza, 240-pound placekicking tackle of the Cleveland Browns, is playing his 12th year of professional football this season and figures he's got two or three years left before he calls it a career.

Forty-Niners, Cleveland Browns Continue Pacing NFL Standings

By UNITED PRESS

The San Francisco Forty-Niners, boasting Y. A. Tittle, R. C. Owens and the spirit that moved the gold miners of a century ago, took a two-game lead in the National Football League's Western Division Sunday while the Cleveland Browns clung to their one-game margin in the east.

San Francisco, threatening to crack open the western race, produced its fourth "miracle" finish of the season to edge the Detroit Lions, 35-31, on Tittle's 41-yard touchdown pass to Owens with 10 seconds to go.

As the teams hit the halfway mark in their 12-game schedules, the Browns became the team to beat in the Eastern Division by defeating the Washington Redskins, 21-17.

The Pittsburgh Steelers gave San Francisco a big assist by downing the Baltimore Colts, 19-13. Baltimore and Detroit started the day tied for second in the west, a game behind the Forty-Niners.

Pittsburgh and the New York Giants remained a game behind Cleveland. New York's defense paced a 31-17 victory over the Green Bay Packers in what coach Jim Lee Howell of the Giants called "a game we had to win." The Giants are defending league and Eastern Division champions.

George Blanda's three field goals gave the Chicago Bears a 16-10 victory over the Rams before 80,456 at Los Angeles while Bobby Thomason's two scoring plunges plus his two touchdown passes to Bob Walston and Bob Stribling led the Philadelphia Eagles to a 38-21 upset triumph over the Chicago Cardinals.

San Francisco and Cleveland have 5-1 records. Detroit and Baltimore are tied behind San Francisco with 3-3 marks while New York and Pittsburgh trail Cleveland with 4-2 records.

Earl Morrall, whose 18 completions in 30 tries for 270 yards was the best one-game passing performance of the season, paced Pittsburgh at Baltimore with scoring tosses of 48 and 22 yards to Ray Mathews.

Fight on 'Blue Laws' Headed for Courts

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL.

NEW YORK (UP)—Battle lines have been drawn for the fight over Sunday closing laws for retailers.

Both sides are primed for the skirmish which is almost certain to reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

The fight will come to a head in Paramus, N.J., Tuesday, when residents of that booming community go to polls to vote on a "blue law" which would prohibit any activity on Sunday that is not considered a work of "charity or necessity."

The Paramus fight has become a test case. Its outcome may have a decided effect on Sunday shopping in other states. Both sides in the Paramus issue have pledged to fight the ordinance up to the Supreme Court.

The shift to the suburbs has brought with it a big expansion of retail establishments along the nation's highways. This has helped to further intensify the already serious traffic problems in some areas.

Fear Business Loss

Merchants, on the other hand, contend "blue laws" against shopping are unconstitutional and would deprive them of a big volume of business.

The controversy is not confined to New Jersey. Some 38 states, including New Jersey, have Sunday closing laws on their books, although in many cases the laws are vague and not enforced.

Sunday blue laws in Colorado, Michigan and Arkansas recently have been either declared unconstitutional or appealed.

Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley has on its books an old law which, if enforced, would require merchants to pay $4 for staying open on Sunday.

Recently a group of Bethlehem, Pa., businessmen approached the local district attorney and asked him to enforce the law. He said it wouldn't do much good, because merchants would pay the $4 fine and stay open.

Supermarkets Open Sunday

There is no doubt that Sunday shopping has been increasing sharply all over the country. Some of the big supermarket chains now are opening their stores on Sunday to take advantage of the heavy traffic on the highways and also to meet competition from other retailers.

In New Jersey, the Suburban Merchants Association has been formed to fight the Sunday closing law, which it claims is being fostered by the big city department stores now opening branches in the suburbs.

An association spokesman said "in every state of the union there's a growing trend toward Sunday shopping.

"This is largely due to a general movement to suburban living, and in the suburbs Sunday is an ideal time for whole families to do their shopping together. Some suburban stores in New Jersey are now doing as much as 40 per cent of their weekly volume on Sundays."

A survey indicated that many other states are experiencing a similar situation.

Felix Gaillard To Be Accepted, Experts Predict

PARIS (UP)— The National Assembly will end France's worst postwar government crisis Tuesday and accept young financial wizard Felix Gaillard as premier, political experts predicted today.

Gaillard, leader of the Radical Socialist Party, won support of every other major French party except the Communists and extreme rightwing Poujadists over the weekend.

He planned to present to the 596-member National Assembly Tuesday — his 38th birthday — a relatively small "unity" cabinet of about 25 members representing the wide middle of the French political spectrum.

For the first time in six years the Left Wing Socialists of Guy Mollet and the Rightwing Independents (Conservatives) of Antoine Pinay agreed to work together in the government.

But the agreement, somewhat like an armed truce, could blow up if Gaillard makes a misstep in assigning cabinet jobs today. One socialist said the new government would not last through the first National Assembly confidence vote after it gets in anyway.

Gaillard's attempt to form a new government is the fifth since the crisis started Sept. 30. Mollet tried twice and Pinay and Resistance Party leader Rene Pleven each tried once.

None could drum up the necessary support among the center parties to overcome 200 opposition votes from the combined Communists and Poujadists.

'Union-Busting' Activities Are Under Study

WASHINGTON (UP)— The Senate Rackets Committee delved today into the alleged "union-busting" activities of Nathan W. Shefferman's labor relations firm in the Detroit, Mich., area.

It called for questioning George Kamenow, one-time Detroit manager for Shefferman who now operates an independent labor relations counseling service.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said that Kamenow maintained "a close friendly relationship with a number of teamster (union) officials."

He said Kamenow would be asked about deals the Shefferman organization made with certain small business firms in the Flint area outside Detroit and the financial arrangements that covered them.

He said much of today's testimony and more to follow Tuesday and Wednesday would involve the operations of eight or nine Flint firms during teamster organizing drives.

Kamenow's testimony opened the third week of the committee's current hearings on the Shefferman firm. Testimony has pictured the firm as specializing in resisting union organizing drives through the use of management-inspired "vote-no committee" and management - financed propaganda.

Kennedy has termed Shefferman a "notorious union buster."

Wyoming Buried Under Deep Snow

By UNITED PRESS

A fresh onslaught of wintry weather buried portions of Wyoming under 16 inches of snow today and weathermen issued freezing rain warnings for western Nebraska and parts of the western Dakotas.

The widespread storm swept the West during the weekend and began pushing eastward today.

Elsewhere, scattered light rain hit the portions of the Mississippi and Ohio Valley, the lower Great Lakes and New England during the night.

Forecasters said colder weather will penetrate the East today, bringing snow flurries in the lower Great Lakes and drizzle in the Ohio Valley.

The Spanish Main is the name formerly applied to the southern portion of the Caribbean sea and the contiguous coast of South America.

Atom Power by 1960

CHICAGO (UP)—British atomic power expert R. A. Skinner predicted Sunday night his country will use the atom for production of cheap electrical power by 1960. Skinner, chief metallurgist for the reactor division of Britain's Associated Electrical Industries, said the power would cost less to produce than power produced from fuels such as coal.

Decay in Teeth on Downgrade

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

We are winning the battle against dental decay. In the next ten years, I am sure, we will have considerably less tooth decay than we have today.

In fact, the American Dental Association made this prediction.

"The problem of dental decay, including the resulting need for dentures, will become relatively minor as the result of flouridation and other scientific advances."

This certainly is good news especially for our children, the ones who benefit the most from flouridation of our water supplies.

However, this doesn't mean the end of our dental worries, not by a long shot. During the next decade we will see a distinct shift in the incidence of dental diseases, the A.D.A. warns.

As tooth decay decreases, we can expect an increase in diseases of the gums and other toothsupporting tissues.

All this means, of course, that the dentist of the future will spend more time preventing disease than treating it. As more and more time is devoted to disease of the gums, we can expect many new advances which will result in even better treatment.

Fluoridation, the A.D.A. says, is one of the major discoveries in the field of dentistry. Another milestone in the advancement of dental health is the perfection of remineralization and antienzyme agents which protect weakened enamel and help fight dental decay.

Development of high speed instruments, such as the drill also is a great step forward. The introduction of diamond and carbide cutting instruments to replace the steel bar is another significant advancement.

Now all of these things make it easier on the dentists as well as on the patient. One advantage is that a dentist can take care of more patients. This is important for there are only 89,000 active dentists in the United States, or one for every 1,900 persons. See why you sometimes have to wait so long for an appointment?

Question and Answer

W.J.R.: What causes hardening of the arteries and what are the symptoms?

Answer: There are many causes of hardening of the arteries, the usual one being old age, although the condition may be due to heart disease, kidney disease, poisoning, or tuberculosis and syphillis. The symptoms consist of high blood pressure with dizziness and headache.

In Hollywood—

Art Linkletter Gives Son Some Advice

(Vernon Scott is on vacation. Today's columnist is Art Linkletter who reveals part of a letter he sent his son when young Jack was thinking of launching a career in show business.)

By ART LINKLETTER

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Rather than prepare a bunch of the usual wise-cracks and relate a few stories about characters I have encountered over the last quarter century in front of the microphones and cameras, I think readers might be interested in a memo I dictated two years to my son.

Jack was entering USC at the age of 17 years with the ambition to become an M.C., and to major in telecommunications.

Dear Jack:

I think show business is the most exciting and challenging and wonderful occupation in the world. You will never have any security because things change too fast to let anybody settle back in comfort for very long. You will always wonder each time you go out in front of an audience if they are really going to like what you have to offer.

You will be up against some of the hottest competition in the world. All the sharp angle boys and idea men of the nation will be scrambling up your back towards the top. In a business based on ideas you will naturally run into clever thieves, back-slapping hypocrites and a flock of parasites who are ready to jump on anybody's coat-tail and ride it as far as they can.

Art Linkletter

But you will also meet some wonderfully original and refreshing characters whose zest for life and whose talent for making people laugh or cry will be a constant inspiration. You will have the chance to go as far as you want to go as fast as you want to go.

But remember, you can't do it alone and the skyrocket can go down just as fast as it went up. Don't forget to acknowledge the help you'll need and get—writers, producers, and every man backstage. In TV more than any other branch of show business, it's the team effort that counts — even though you are the one out in front taking the bows.

Perhaps the most important advice I can give you is to prepare. No matter how experienced and clever you may be, somebody else in the next studio is just as talented.

And above all, have fun. If you are having a good time and are thoroughly enjoying the wonderful experience of communicating a zest for life to millions of people, it will come through and indelibly stamp you as "real." And this, after all, is the true trademark of a fine performer.

Lots of luck

Dad.

World of TV—

TV Comic Had Rough Beginning

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — For the first 10 years of his professional life, Tom Poston labored in obscurity.

He came out of the Air Force after World War II and organized a dramatic stock company in Delaware that eventually foundered on its flops. He migrated to Broadway and landed a succession of small parts. He did comedy and drama on TV and even ran a local show of his own on TV for 15 weeks, but still remained a no-name.

Then last December, he joined the cast of Steve Allen's NBC-TV Sunday show. Today, Poston's face is known to millions. But the millions still don't know his name.

But that's not too surprising. Poston plays a TV character who can't remember his name either.

Acts Bewildered

Poston is owner of one of the heads that bob up in Allen's "Man in the Street" TV interviews. He essays the comic role of a bewildered character who tries each week to remember his monicker and other pertinent facts of his life, but can't quite make it.

"It's kind of funny," said Poston as he looked kind of funny, "but people keep pulling my own routine on me. I'd say about 10 times a day some one will stop me and pretend he can't remember my name.

"All kinds of people go through the bit. They do it in the streets, in elevators, at parties. I don't know how many hundreds of hackies have yelled at me from their cabs—'Hey, you. You. What's the matter? You can't remember your own name?' When you get down to it, it's kind of an odd thing to be known as that stupid guy who can't even remember his own name."

Likes The Role

Poston feels a kind of affection for the dim-witted character he plays. "He's a curious little guy," said Poston, "the kind who probably doesn't have a wife or kids and probably lives in a rooming house with a motherly housekeeper to look after him. Somebody would have to take care of him. I don't think he could make it alone.

"The key to his character is that he panics easily. He really does know his own name, you know. It's just that when he gets under those hot lights and sees all those cameras, he can't fight it through. When Steve Allen throws that first question at him, he just falls apart."

Love Conquers All

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—After an argument in 1954, Robert Brachman, 33, rented a bill board to tell Miss Arlene Hale, 27, of his affection for her. His three-year campaign paid off last week when the couple took out a marriage license.

GOP Plans Changes

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon will get together with other Republican leaders for a high-level GOP policy review next month.

The meeting was called at the same time that there were reports the President has come under considerable pressure to adopt a more conservative legislative program next year.

Informants said some influential Congressional Republicans have warned him he will get less cooperation from GOP congressmen unless he does so.

Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn announced Sunday night he has called a meeting here of the Republican National Committee for Dec. 6. The 72-member executive committee will hold a session the day before.

The leaders probably will assess, among other things, the political impact of Russia's recent satellite-missile triumphs, the Little Rock, Ark., integration dispute, the state of the nation's economic health and the rise in living costs.

Alcorn said the main purpose of the meetings will be to obtain "a frank appraisal of the status of the Republican Party and its organization."

Eisenhower also will meet with GOP congressional leaders at the White House in December to discuss his 1958 legislative plans. GOP sources said some Republican leaders will make a strong protest at the meeting unless the President takes a more conservative tack.

Eisenhower is being urged, informants said, to hold his budget below last year's $71,800,000,000 spending proposals, to curtail new federal spending programs and to drop his federal school aid program.

The envelopes were accompanied with letters pointing out the need for funds was greater this year than it had been for a number of years Equipment is becoming old and in need of replacement The building payments, being made jointly by firemen and borough council, have to be met. The committee is constantly urging the public to recognize their needs and respond as early as possible.
